Investment environment

- Asian property equities rose 4.7% over the month and outperformed general equities.
- Japan (+10%) led with developers outperforming REITs, boosted by the Bank of Japan's well-flagged decision to scrap the yield curve control and end its negative interest rate policy - which was more dovish than expected as it was balanced with the continuation of its Japanese government bond purchase program.
- Australian REITs (+8%) also did well with retail landlords maintaining their outperformance, while Singapore delivered flat returns over the month with gains from hospitality REITs offset by weakness from selected commercial REITs.
- Hong Kong (-7%) was particularly weak. Here, results generally came in below expectations with several developers cutting dividends, and retail landlords were weighed down by concerns of leakage of domestic spending in mainland China.

Portfolio review

The fund saw positive contributions from all major markets over the month, particularly Hong Kong and Japan. Our holdings in Japanese developer Nomura Real Estate Holdings and Australian REIT Goodman Group, alongside the underweight position in Hong Kong developers CK Asset and Sun Hung Kai, were key positive contributors.

This was partially offset by deduction from the fund's underweight position in Japanese developer Mitsubishi Estate and the holding in Hong Kong retail landlord Link REIT.

Over the period, we increased the fund's position in Japan as we expect the strengthening in the virtuous cycle between wages and prices to provide a tailwind for the economy. Meanwhile, asset values coupled with continued momentum in corporate reforms could further support a re-rating in stocks. In addition to topping up our existing holdings, we also added a new position in Japanese developer Sumitomo Realty. This was funded with proceeds from exiting the holdings in Australian self storage landlord National Storage REIT and Link REIT, where in the latter we expect weak fundamentals to persist given the rising headwinds for retail landlords.

Manager outlook

The market remains on watch for a potential turn in the rate cycle, which would likely mark a change in sentiment for property equities following a challenging backdrop over the past few years. Valuations are still attractive to us relative to private real estate as they have been trading at a significant discount to net asset value and to their own history. Meanwhile, fundamentals remain mixed across countries and sectors, presenting opportunities to add value through active fund management.

We believe the long-term benefits of owning listed real estate remain. The asset class has historically offered lower correlations to many other asset classes and provided investors the benefits of portfolio enhancement by increasing risk-adjusted returns within a balanced portfolio. The real estate market has continued to provide an attractive, reliable and growing income stream for investors, which is something we expect to be rewarded over time.

In accordance with the Sustainable Finance Disclosure Regulation, the Fund is classified as Article 8 and promotes, among other characteristics, environmental and/or social characteristics, and invests in companies with good governance practices.

Investment objective

The Fund aims to provide a sustainable level of income, with a dividend yield higher than that of the FTSE EPRA Nareit Developed Asia Dividend Plus Index, plus the potential for capital growth over the long term. The Fund invests at least 75% of its assets in a concentrated portfolio of shares (equities) and equity-related securities of real estate investment trusts (REITs) and companies of any size which will derive the main part of their revenue from owning, developing and managing real estate in the Asia Pacific region.

Fund specific risks

When the Fund, or a share/unit class, seeks to mitigate exchange rate movements of a currency relative to the base currency (hedge), the hedging strategy itself may positively or negatively impact the value of the Fund due to differences in short-term interest rates between the currencies. The Fund could lose money if a counterparty with which the Fund trades becomes unwilling or unable to meet its obligations, or as a result of failure or delay in operational processes or the failure of a third party provider. In addition to income, this share class may distribute realised and unrealised capital gains and original capital invested. Fees, charges and expenses are also deducted from capital. Both factors may result in capital erosion and reduced potential for capital growth. Investors should also note that distributions of this nature may be treated (and taxable) as income depending on local tax legislation. Shares/Units can lose value rapidly, and typically involve higher risks than bonds or money market instruments. The value of your investment may fall as a result. Shares of small and mid-size companies can be more volatile than shares of larger companies, and at times it may be difficult to value or to sell shares at desired times and prices, increasing the risk of losses. If a Fund has a high exposure to a particular country or geographical region it carries a higher level of risk than a Fund which is more broadly diversified. The Fund is focused towards particular industries or investment themes and may be heavily impacted by factors such as changes in government regulation, increased price competition, technological advancements and other adverse events. This Fund may have a particularly concentrated portfolio relative to its investment universe or other funds in its sector. An adverse event impacting even a small number of holdings could create significant volatility or losses for the Fund. The Fund invests in real estate investment trusts (REITs) and other companies or funds engaged in property investment, which involve risks above those associated with investing directly in property. In particular, REITs may be subject to less strict regulation than the Fund itself and may experience greater volatility than their underlying assets. The Fund may use derivatives with the aim of reducing risk or managing the portfolio more efficiently. However this introduces other risks, in particular, that a derivative counterparty may not meet its contractual obligations. If the Fund holds assets in currencies other than the base currency of the Fund, or you invest in a share/unit class of a different currency to the Fund (unless hedged, i.e. mitigated by taking an offsetting position in a related security), the value of your investment may be impacted by changes in exchange rates. Securities within the Fund could become hard to value or to sell at a desired time and price, especially in extreme market conditions when asset prices may be falling, increasing the risk of investment losses. Some or all of the ongoing charges may be taken from capital, which may erode capital or reduce potential for capital growth. The Fund may incur a higher level of transaction costs as a result of investing in less actively traded or less developed markets compared to a fund that invests in more active/developed markets.
