

HORIZON EURO HIGH YIELD BOND FUND

At a glance

Performance*

The Fund returned 0.11%, the Index returned 0.38% and the Sector returned 0.47%.

Contributors/detractors

Security selection was the driver of outperformance during the month, while sector allocation slightly detracted.

Outlook

Despite some volatility in single issuers, we remain cautiously optimistic on the outlook for high yield markets and believe credit spreads have the potential to tighten a little more.

Investment environment

- The European high yield bond market posted a small positive return in March. However, excess returns (versus equivalent government debt) were negative as the positive impact from lower government bond yields was offset by wider spreads.
- In Europe, high yield spreads widened as volatility increased following news that telecommunications firm Altice France will need to undergo a balance-sheet restructuring that could see bondholders taking a haircut.
- Elsewhere, the European Central Bank (ECB) suggested it could begin easing borrowing conditions from June as it reduced its outlook for inflation. Eurozone annual inflation cooled to 2.6% in February, which was slightly higher than predicted, from 2.8% in January.
- In terms of ratings, BB-rated bonds posted a positive excess return, while B-rated and CCC-rated bonds were negative, primarily due to the weakness in Altice France and associated transmission to other lower-quality issuers.
- In terms of sectors, non-financials outperformed financials. In non-financials, energy, retail and transportation tightened the most, while media, telecommunications, technology and capital goods underperformed.

Portfolio review

Security selection contributed positively to returns, as did the fund's marginal overweight position to interest rate duration relative to the benchmark, as government bond yields fell over the month. Sector allocation slightly detracted.

At the sector level, overweight positions in the telecommunications and utilities sectors (driven mostly by Thames Water) and an underweight position in capital goods detracted from performance. An overweight position in banks contributed positively to returns. Security selection in basic industry and transportation was negative for performance, although security selection in real estate, telecommunications and healthcare contributed strongly. From a ratings perspective, the fund's underweight allocation to and security selection in CCC-rated bonds contributed positively.

At the issuer level, overweight positions in UK water utility Thames Water and packaging company Ardagh detracted from performance. Thames Water's bonds fell in March following continued public anger around sewage dumping and investor concerns about the company's ability to service its debt stack. Not owning French satellite operator Eutelsat also hurt relative returns after its bonds performed well following a refinancing deal. Similarly, not owning some real estate issuers also hurt performance, including REIT Heimstaden Bostad and its holding company Heimstaden.

More positively, the fund benefited from overweight positions in real estate companies CPI Property and Aroundtown after their bonds rebounded, along with the wider real estate sector, as interest rate expectations improved. The fund's positioning in the Altice complex contributed positively to relative performance.

As a highly levered, mature business, Altice France (SFR) has struggled in the higher rate environment over the last 12 months. In March, the company announced that it would need to undergo debt restructuring that could see bondholders lose out, which led to a significant drop in its bond prices.

The fund benefited from its zero-weight position in Altice France's senior unsecured bonds, which saw the biggest drop in price, and holds senior secured bonds, so our overall position added to performance. A lack of exposure to technology company Atos also helped relative returns, as the company is heavily indebted and the bonds were trading at highly stressed levels.

Manager outlook

Macroeconomic data in March has showed that the risk of an economic hard landing in the US has diminished. However, inflation is proving more stubborn, particularly in services and wages. In Europe, it seems like the weakest period for growth is behind us, with first-quarter GDP growth in the eurozone and the UK likely to be modestly positive.

Meanwhile, eurozone inflation is now close to the ECB's target level. That said, we still expect to see volatility in the coming months as expectations change around the timing and magnitude of interest rate cuts. Market dynamics remain relatively positive, and we believe there will be a tailwind of investment into risk assets this year, given the higher rate environment and the reinvestment risk investors will face once the interest rate cuts that have been priced in start to materialise.

Despite some single-issuer volatility in the high yield bond market in March, we remain cautiously optimistic on the outlook for the asset class and believe credit spreads have the potential to tighten a little more, given the current benign macroeconomic backdrop. We believe the biggest risk for high yield bonds is interest rates staying higher for longer, as a continued high rate environment will negatively impact bigger, more mature business with large capital structures.

These companies tend to be lower-rated issuers and, as a result, the fund is fully underweight in CCC-rated issuers across all high yield markets.

We are also wary of overly optimistic valuations, particularly as the macroeconomic picture is far from clear. Geopolitical risks remain elevated, with conflicts such as Russia's invasion of Ukraine looking more likely to escalate than deescalate in the near future. The political risk fuelled by general elections is high on our watch list as nearly 60% of the world's democratic population - including the US and the UK - goes to the polls over the year.

Technicals remain solid for the asset class, with still-elevated supply being met with positive demand. We think this should turn into a tailwind in the second quarter as supply is expected to drop sharply as companies start to enter earnings-related blackout periods. However, as we navigate expectations around interest rate cuts and an approaching debt maturity wall, we remain cautious on the companies with increasing leverage and lower interest rate coverage ratios but positive on companies that continue to have reasonably good interest cover ratios and strong free cash flow measures.

We continue to position the portfolio to benefit from a positive credit backdrop, but remain focused on relative and idiosyncratic value while also managing risks in order to deliver attractive risk-adjusted returns.

Investment policy

The Fund invests at least 70% of its assets in high yield (non-investment grade, equivalent to BB+ rated or lower) corporate bonds, denominated in Euros or Sterling. The Fund may invest up to 20% of its net assets in total return swaps, and may invest in contingent convertible bonds (CoCos); and/or asset-backed and mortgage-backed securities. The Fund may also invest in other assets including bonds of other types from any issuer (including perpetual bonds), cash and money market instruments. The Investment Manager may use derivatives (complex financial instruments), including total return swaps, with the aim of making investment gains in line with the Fund's objective, to reduce risk or to manage the Fund more efficiently. The Fund is actively managed with reference to the ICE BofA European Currency Non-Financial High Yield Constrained Index (100% Hedged), which is broadly representative of the bonds in which it may invest, as this forms the basis of the Fund's performance target. The Investment Manager has discretion to choose investments for the Fund with weightings different to the index or not in the index, but at times the Fund may hold investments similar to the index.

Investment strategy

The Investment Manager seeks to provide a high overall yield and potential for capital growth by investing primarily in Euro and Sterling denominated sub investment grade rated corporate bonds. The investment process combines rigorous fundamentally driven security selection from the credit analysts, which is expected to be the largest driver of performance, with asset allocation views.

Fund specific risks

When the Fund, or a share/unit class, seeks to mitigate exchange rate movements of a currency relative to the base currency (hedge), the hedging strategy itself may positively or negatively impact the value of the Fund due to differences in short-term interest rates between the currencies. The Fund could lose money if a counterparty with which the Fund trades becomes unwilling or unable to meet its obligations, or as a result of failure or delay in operational processes or the failure of a third party provider. CoCos can fall sharply in value if the financial strength of an issuer weakens and a predetermined trigger event causes the bonds to be converted into shares/units of the issuer or to be partly or wholly written off. An issuer of a bond (or money market instrument) may become unable or unwilling to pay interest or repay capital to the Fund. If this happens or the market perceives this may happen, the value of the bond will fall. When interest rates rise (or fall), the prices of different securities will be affected differently. In particular, bond values generally fall when interest rates rise (or are expected to rise). This risk is typically greater the longer the maturity of a bond investment. The Fund invests in high yield (non-investment grade) bonds and while these generally offer higher rates of interest than investment grade bonds, they are more speculative and more sensitive to adverse changes in market conditions. Some bonds (callable bonds) allow their issuers the right to repay capital early or to extend the maturity. Issuers may exercise these rights when favourable to them and as a result the value of the Fund may be impacted. If a Fund has a high exposure to a particular country or geographical region it carries a higher level of risk than a Fund which is more broadly diversified. The Fund may use derivatives to help achieve its investment objective. This can result in leverage (higher levels of debt), which can magnify an investment outcome. Gains or losses to the Fund may therefore be greater than the cost of the derivative. Derivatives also introduce other risks, in particular, that a derivative counterparty may not meet its contractual obligations. If the Fund holds assets in currencies other than the base currency of the Fund, or you invest in a share/unit class of a different currency to the Fund (unless hedged, i.e. mitigated by taking an offsetting position in a related security), the value of your investment may be impacted by changes in exchange rates. Securities within the Fund could become hard to value or to sell at a desired time and price, especially in extreme market conditions when asset prices may be falling, increasing the risk of investment losses. Some or all of the ongoing charges may be taken from capital, which may erode capital or reduce potential for capital growth.
