At a glance

Performance*

The Fund returned 2.50%, the Index returned 3.94% and the Sector returned 3.49%.

Contributors/detractors

Positive contributors included Airbus, Safran, Holcim and Adidas. Detractors included BESI, UPM-Kymmene and Infineon.

Outlook

Continued uncertainty around the path of inflation and interest rates will likely cause some near-term volatility. We see attractive global secular themes within our investment universe over the longer-term.

Investment environment

- Equity markets continued their advance with European indices up on average over 3%, driven by increasing macroeconomic optimism.
- A 'goldilocks' scenario has seized the narrative, with investors expecting interest rate cuts within the coming months and a 'soft landing' outcome (versus a recession) in the real economy.
- This led to the outperformance of some more cyclical, and attractively priced areas of the market - notably banks - while signs of a market 'rotation' continued into April.

Portfolio review

Top positive contributors included Airbus and Safran (civil aerospace), Adidas, and Holcim (building materials).

Top detractors included BESI, which saw a sharp share price decline of over 20% after trade media in South Korea reported potential delays to the adoption of its next-generation 'hybrid bonding' technology by key semiconductor manufacturers. The stock remains a top longer-term contributor for us, having risen 100% over 12 months, and we maintain our fundamental conviction in the company's prospects.

UPM Kymmene was again a detractor on the back of a senior management exit and tension with a prominent labour union. While trading momentum in pulp markets appears to be improving, we reduced the position size in response to the company-specific news. UPM is no longer our biggest active weight in the fund.

Infineon continued to detract from fund performance too, as the market moved to price in a "shift to the right" of orders troughing in key end markets. We are of the view that a 'profit warning' is increasingly expected and priced in by the market, and thus we have been building the position size on the back of the share price weakness.

We opened a position in BNP Paribas in order to reduce the fund's underweight position to banks. We also opened a new position in London Stock Exchange Group, attracted by its defensive earnings growth profile and its partnership with Microsoft, which offers the potential of an enhanced competitive position in data services for the financial services industry.

Elsewhere, we exited the position in Amadeus, preferring to focus the fund's air travel exposure on existing holdings including Airbus, Safran and Ryanair.

higher inflation and higher interest rates in the years ahead, at least relative to the decade prior to the Covid pandemic. This is not to argue against the potential for near-term disinflation of a more cyclical nature, as supply shocks from both Covid and the Ukraine war are lapsed.

That said, even given the shifting rhetoric from central banks, we continue to lean much more towards a central bank 'plateau' rather than a 'pivot' on interest rates. This is, unless we witness a sharp economic contraction. However, given the fiscal bazooka being deployed under 'Bidenomics' and the need for Europe to follow suit, we may not see the economic 'hard landing' the market intermittently panics over, even if consumers do moderate their appetite to spend.

Longer term, we expect a clear shift towards a multipolar world, of which deglobalisation - and the capital intensive likes of 'Bidenomics' - is an outcome. We could also see a political shift in favour of populist/pro-labour policies, from both traditional 'left' and 'right' ends of the political spectrum. This could mean stronger wage inflation and greater labour market friction. It also leads us to believe equity investors will need to be more sensitive to valuation when making stock purchasing decisions.

The real economy implications will also present opportunities for stock-pickers. Enablers of deglobalisation (think industrial automation, digitalisation, electrification and construction materials firms) could thrive, while large incumbents across many industries (such as brewing, food catering and enterprise software) could see their already dominant positions enhanced as the end of virtually 'free' money tempers the threat of disruption by unprofitable start-ups. Europe offers plentiful opportunities to access these themes, being home to large global champions at what we see as reasonable valuations.

Additional fund information

Tax assumptions and reliefs depend upon an investor's particular circumstances and may be subject to change. Availability of share classes shown may be limited by law in certain jurisdictions. Performance records/scenarios are detailed within the fund's specific KIID/KID; fees and charges, and the respective risk rating may vary. Further information can be found in the fund's prospectus and KIID/KID, which must be reviewed before investing. Please consult your local sales representative and/or financial adviser if you have any queries. This is a Luxembourg SICAV Fund, regulated by the Commission de Surveillance du Secteur Financier (CSSF). These are the views of the author at the time of publication and may differ from the views of other individuals/teams at Janus Henderson Investors. Any securities, funds, sectors or indices mentioned within this article do not constitute or form part of any offer or solicitation to buy or sell them. The information in this commentary does not qualify as an investment recommendation. Investment into the fund will acquire units/shares of the fund itself and not the underlying assets owned by the fund. Cash balances and exposures are based on settled and unsettled trades as at the reporting date.

Investment policy

The Fund invests at least two-thirds of its assets in shares (equities) and equity-related securities of companies, of any size, in any industry, in Europe (including UK). Companies will have their registered office in or do most of their business (directly or through subsidiaries) in this region. The Fund may also invest in other assets including cash and money market instruments. The Investment Manager may use derivatives (complex financial instruments) to reduce risk or to manage the Fund more efficiently. The Fund is actively managed with reference to the MSCI Europe Index, which is broadly representative of the companies in which it may invest, as this can provide a useful comparator for assessing the Fund's performance. The Investment Manager has discretion to choose investments for the Fund with weightings different to the index or not in the index. Depending on prevailing market conditions the Fund's portfolio may shift between 'high conviction' (whereby the manager will take significant risk relative to the index) and a more cautious stance. This means the performance of the Fund may at times differ significantly from the index, while at other times it may be more closely aligned.

Investment strategy

The Investment Manager looks to anticipate catalysts for change in companies and industries based on fundamental research and thought leadership, in order to construct a portfolio of large companies complemented by mid-size company opportunities with the potential to enhance the Fund's overall returns. Smaller companies are not normally a significant focus of the portfolio.

Fund specific risks

When the Fund, or a share/unit class, seeks to mitigate exchange rate movements of a currency relative to the base currency (hedge), the hedging strategy itself may positively or negatively impact the value of the Fund due to differences in short-term interest rates between the currencies. The Fund could lose money if a counterparty with which the Fund trades becomes unwilling or unable to meet its obligations, or as a result of failure or delay in operational processes or the failure of a third party provider. Shares/Units can lose value rapidly, and typically involve higher risks than bonds or money market instruments. The value of your investment may fall as a result. Shares of small and mid-size companies can be more volatile than shares of larger companies, and at times it may be difficult to value or to sell shares at desired times and prices, increasing the risk of losses. If a Fund has a high exposure to a particular country or geographical region it carries a higher level of risk than a Fund which is more broadly diversified. The Fund may use derivatives with the aim of reducing risk or managing the portfolio more efficiently. However this introduces other risks, in particular, that a derivative counterparty may not meet its contractual obligations. If the Fund holds assets in currencies other than the base currency of the Fund, or you invest in a share/unit class of a different currency to the Fund (unless hedged, i.e. mitigated by taking an offsetting position in a related security), the value of your investment may be impacted by changes in exchange rates. Securities within the Fund could become hard to value or to sell at a desired time and price, especially in extreme market conditions when asset prices may be falling, increasing the risk of investment losses.
